

UPC CFI, Local Division The Hague, 29 July 2024,
Powel v Abbott and Sibio

Appeal dismissed

- IPPT20250109, UPC CoA, Abbott v Powell

PATENT LAW – PROCEDURAL LAW

Public access to the register granted, applying criteria set forth in IPPT20240410, UPC CoA, Ocado v Autostore \(Rule 262 RoP\)

- No specific interest required; interest of better understanding and scrutiny of decisions outweighs any interests of the parties involved once the proceedings have ended; in case of an appeal the purpose of protection of integrity withholding access to the documents in first instance no longer serves that purpose; No annex was filed while applying for confidentiality under R. 262A and Abbott also did not provide any specific reasons for confidentiality of (any of) those annexes.

- Leave to appeal granted
- From R. 220/224 RoP and 73 UPCA it might not be totally clear if and when an appeal of this order can be lodged, while it appears this should at any rate be made possible. To prevent an appeal to become meaningless, a term of 15 days before access is granted is to be observed (and unless no appeal is filed within that period).

Application R. 262 RoP – Public access to the file

SUBMISSIONS

Mr. A. Rimmer, UPC representative, filed a request pursuant to R. 262.1\(b\) RoP, on behalf of Powell Gilbert, as a member of the public, for access to the written pleadings and evidence listed below (as identified in the UPC CMS) which were lodged in these proceedings:

Stage	Document Title	Date
Application	PI Application - Application	20/03/24
Sibio Technology Limited to comply with the Order	Formal response to the Order of the Court	23/04/24
Umedwings Netherlands B.V. to comply with the Order	Formal response to the Order of the Court	23/04/24
Abbott Diabetes Care Inc. to comply with the Order	Reply Abbott - EP 283 proceedings - Formal response to the Order of the Court	08/05/24
Objection Umedwings Netherlands B.V.	Rejoinder Objection to the Application for provisional measures	15/05/24
Objection Sibio Technology Limited	Rejoinder Objection to the Application for provisional measures	15/05/24

According to the request, its purpose is to have a better understanding of the decision rendered, in view of the arguments brought forward by the parties and the evidence relied on. Powell Gilbert is not seeking access to pleadings and evidence in relation to any ongoing proceedings on the merits. Powell Gilbert alleges that the protection of integrity of the proceedings no longer plays a role in the balancing of interests as the proceedings have ended in a final order. Powell Gilbert is not filing this request in an abusive manner or in such a way as to risk the general interest of justice and public order.

The parties were invited by the Judge-Rapporteur to comment by preliminary order of 3 July 2024. All parties filed their comments by letters of 11 July 2024. Both Abbott and Sibio c.s. submit the application should be denied.

Abbott – put succinctly – submits that as it has appealed the order, the proceedings for a preliminary injunction and other provisional measures are still ongoing and that it is therefore premature to grant access to any of the requested documents on file. According to Abbott, the integrity of proceedings is still at issue. Also, the order refusing the relief sought \(ORD 30431/2024, UPC CFI 131/2024\) was limited to the consideration of added matter objections (intermediate generalization), as the court states at paragraph 9 of the order. All other matters regarding validity, infringement, and the necessity of preliminary measures (urgency, harm and balance of interests) are not addressed in the order. The great majority of the arguments and evidence in issue between the parties are therefore not in the public domain and are not already subject to public debate. In fact, these arguments and evidence will now be addressed by the Court of Appeal. Abbott would not be able to bring forward its arguments and evidence for decision by the Court of Appeal in an impartial and independent manner, without risk of influence and interference from external parties in the public domain. Abbott further invokes the appeal in the parallel proceedings on patent EP 2,713,879 (UPC CFI 130/2024, ACT 14944/2024). Abbott points out that its interests outweigh Powell Gilbert's unspecific interests and that Powell Gilbert could have attended the oral hearing. Finally, with reference to R. 262.2 RoP, Abbott requests that all annexes to briefs remain withheld from access. In particular, Annex E1 which is designated confidential, should remain withheld.

Sibio c.s. – equally put succinctly – submit that Powell Gilbert has failed to sufficiently demonstrate, pursuant to R. 262.1(b) RoP, a legitimate interest in the disclosure of all written pleadings and associated evidence. A mere professional interest in the decision underlying this case does not suffice for such a request. According to Sibio c.s., the jurisprudence and factual circumstances of the case, as well as the fundamental arguments of the parties, are already adequately disclosed through the public decision of the LD The Hague. This negates the necessity for further inspection of the written pleadings, especially those of the Defendants. Furthermore, the facts of the case can be sufficiently ascertained through publicly available information, still according to Sibio c.s.

GROUNDINGS FOR THE ORDER

In its decision of 10 April 2024, the UPC Court of Appeal in Ocado v AutoStore \(ORD 19369/2024, UPC CoA 404/2023\) reasoned as follows (Paragraphs 47-50):

47. Both parties agree that a member of the public generally has an interest that written pleadings and evidence are made available. This allows for a better understanding of the decision rendered, in view of the arguments brought forward by the parties and the evidence relied on. It also allows scrutiny of the Court, which is important for trust in the Court by the public at large. This general interest of a member of the public usually arises after a decision was rendered. At this point, there is a decision that needs to be understood and the handling of the dispute by the Court can be scrutinised.

48. The protection of the integrity of proceedings ensures that the parties are able to bring forward their arguments and evidence and that this is decided upon by the Court in an impartial and independent manner, without influence and interference from external parties in the public domain. The interest of integrity of proceedings usually only plays a role during the course of the proceedings.

49. This means that these interests – the general interest referred to above and the protection of integrity of proceedings – are usually properly balanced and duly weighed against each other, if access to written pleadings and evidence is given to a member of the public after the proceedings have come to an end by a decision of the court.

50. The Court of Appeal notes that if the decision is rendered by the Court of First Instance and an appeal is or may be lodged, this applies only to the written pleadings and evidence in the proceedings at first instance. Withholding access to these documents no longer serves the purpose of protection of integrity of proceedings, since the publicly available decision will contain the relevant arguments and evidence presented by the parties and thus (may) already become(s) subject to public debate

In as far as Sibio c.s. and Abbott submit that Powell Gilbert do not have a sufficiently (specific) interest with their request, this argument must fail as the Court of Appeal recognized that access to documents to enable better understanding and scrutiny of decisions is a legitimate reason for a request for pleadings and evidence (paragraph 47). Also, the Court of Appeal held that this interest outweighs any interests of the parties involved once the proceedings in question have ended. From paragraph 50 cited above, it is further clear that in case of an appeal, withholding access to the documents in first instance no longer serves the purpose of protection of integrity of proceedings. Hence, Abbott's argument based on the fact that an appeal was lodged should also fail. The fact that not all arguments were addressed by the court of first instance does not alter this reasoning and the CoA decision does not make or hint on this distinction. It would also be very burdensome for the court to filter out any arguments that may not have been (fully) addressed in its decision or order, as Abbott apparently seeks.

In as far as Abbott seeks to withhold access to all annexes and in particular to Annex E1, this is to be denied as well. No annex was filed while applying for confidentiality under R. 262A and Abbott also did not provide any specific reasons for confidentiality of (any of) those annexes in its comments of 11 July 2024.

From R. 220/224 RoP and 73 UPCA it might not be totally clear if and when an appeal of this order can be lodged, while it appears this should at any rate be made possible. The Judge-Rapporteur will therefore grant leave to appeal. To prevent an appeal to become meaningless, a term of 15 days before access is granted is to be observed (and unless no appeal is filed within that period).

ORDER

1. Powell Gilbert is to be granted access to the pleadings and evidence they request within 15 days from service of this order, on the condition that no party has filed an appeal within that period.

2. Leave to appeal is granted.

INSTRUCTIONS TO THE PARTIES AND TO THE REGISTRY

However, Abbott and Sibio c.s. will be able to submit once again (within 7 days after this order) if and where there is any private data to be withheld. The parties should be aware that the Registry will only perform an automated (therefore perhaps: rather perfunctory) screening of the documents for private data.
